MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Financial Results

In the first half of 2021, as vaccination programs begin in different regions, the COVID-19 pandemic is beginning to recede with early signs of global economic recovery. In addition, people across countries have raised concerns about climate change and are eager to reach common ground for the transition towards a low-carbon future. More countries are actively launching new policies for promoting the reduction of carbon emissions and developing the renewable energy sector. The global demand of new energy vehicles has grown rapidly and the replacement of fossil fuel-based energy sources by renewable energy sources, such as wind power, has accelerated. All these have resulted in a substantial increase of consumption of rare earth materials in the new energy sector and led to an increase in price heralding a bright prospect for the industry at large.

For the six months ended 30 June 2021, the Group recorded revenue of approximately HK$539,065,000, a 17% increase compared to HK$459,842,000 in the same period last year. Revenue from the Group's rare earth segment increased by approximately 13% from HK$332,001,000 in the same period last year to HK$374,627,000, contributing around 69% of the Group's total revenue. Revenue from refractory segment increased by approximately 29% from HK$127,841,000 in the same period last year to HK$164,438,000, accounting for around 31% of the Group's total revenue. The gross profit margin for the period was approximately 9%, which was similar to the same period in the previous year. The net profit for the period was approximately HK$15,169,000, which was 40% more than the same period in 2020. Earnings per share was approximately HK0.62 cents (2020: HK0.45 cents).

Business Review

Rare Earth Business

From the beginning of 2020 to early 2021, China implemented a series of anti-pandemic measures to effectively prevent and control the pandemic, thereby stabilising the Chinese market. Heeding the increased demand for "carbon neutrality" and "carbon emissions reduction", new energy or clean energy products are increasing in popularity. The development of electric vehicles and wind power generation, etc., directly impacts the market demand for rare earth magnetic materials as well as the product price. On the other hand, due to the political instability in Myanmar alongside the impact of the pandemic, the border between China and Myanmar continues to be blocked, seriously affecting the supply chain of rare earth minerals from Myanmar. The import of raw materials has decreased significantly and thus further increasing the price of rare earth products.

In the first half of 2021, the Group sold approximately 440 tonnes of rare earth products, a decrease of approximately 35% compared to the same period last year. Revenue was approximately HK$374,627,000. Dysprosium, terbium and praseodymium neodymium, which are mainly applied in magnetic materials, accounted for approximately 55% of the total sales volume and approximately 85% of the total sales value of all rare earth elements sold by the Group during the period. In terms of price per unit, the price of dysprosium oxide, praseodymium neodymium oxide and terbium oxide increased by approximately 35%, 50% and 90%, respectively compared to that of the same period last year. Segmental gross profit margin increased to approximately 8%.

The Group's rare earth production facility is located in Yixing next to the Taihu Lake. During the review period, an all-round upgrade was launched by the local government which targeted the environmental measures within the region; many chemist factories in the region reduced or suspended their production to cooperate with the move. The Group has also cooperated with the local government's work, running its rare earth separation production line under limited operations and invested in maintenance and upgrading of its facilities in environment protection aspect. In the past few years, the Group has transformed the rare earth production business model into a trading-driven business model, focusing on the production of value-added high-end products, so the relevant policies are of limited impact on its operations.

In terms of the market distribution, due to the serious pandemic in Europe, the Group has not exported any rare earth products to Europe in the first half of 2021. The proportion of domestic sales in China is approximately 98% of the Group's revenue from rare earth products while overseas markets such as Japan accounted for the remaining 2%.

Refractory Materials Business

Although the pandemic has greatly moderated in the first half of the year and most industries have resumed operation and production, the domestic steel and non-ferrous metal industries have not bounced back leading to a tightening of production cost. The procurement for refractory materials has endured significant pricing-related pressures. In the first half of 2021, the Group sold approximately 16,400 tonnes of refractory materials products, an increase of approximately 30% over the same period last year. However, due to the reduction of product prices, such as that the average price of fused magnesia-chrome bricks, casting materials and high-temperature ceramics sold during the period has been reduced by about 20% to 30%, a slight increase in revenue of 13% to approximately HK$133,085,000 was resulted. On the other hand, the increase of raw materials prices and labor costs caused the segmental gross profit margin to drop to approximately 13%.

In contrast, the Group's magnesium grains business secured robust recovery during the period. The economic activities in the Northeast region of China faced downturn following a strict control measures implemented by the authorities in the previous year. As the pandemic moderates this year, local government has continued to implement control measures in a bid to fight the pandemic. On the other hand, it encouraged some better-performing enterprises to resume production, with an aim to maintain economic activities in the region on the basis of pandemic control and environmental protection. The Group sold approximately 11,800 tonnes of magnesium grains products in the first half of 2021, a significant increase of approximately 150% over the same period last year. The average selling price of the products increased by approximately 10% over the same period last year and related sales value tripled over the same period last year to approximately HK$31,353,000. Although the raw materials cost increased, gross profit margin increased to approximately 10% attributable to the economies of scale.

The Group's refractory segment recorded revenue of approximately HK$164,438,000 during the period under review, an increase of approximately 29% from HK$127,841,000. The segmental gross profit margin was around 13%.

In terms of the geographic market distribution, export markets are still blocked due to the pandemic. During the period under review, the Group's refractory products were still mainly focused on the domestic market in China with the region comprising approximately 83% of the segment revenue. The Japanese market accounted for about 13% and other markets, including the European market, accounted for the remaining 4%.

Prospects

As the world focuses on the development of high-end technology, rare earth will maintain its position as an essential element for high-tech production. With the explosive growth on the demand for new energy vehicles, smart chips, and 5G products and continued demand for wind power and energy-saving products to achieve carbon neutrality, the demand for rare earth products will continue its promising growth. When formulating the development plan for the rare earth industry, the Ministry of Industry and Information Technology of China has clearly stated that the rare earth industry should form a new industry pattern featuring reasonable exploitation, orderly production, efficient utilisation, technological innovation, and coordinated enhancement, aiming for mid-high-level application and high value-added oriented development stage, and demonstrating the tactical value of rare earth functional applications in full. Given the increasing demand and application for high-precision technology, the application and development of rare earth technology is facilitated and the increase in the average price of rare earth is maintained. As a result, the overall rare earth industry will embrace a steady and healthy development path. As an important strategic resource, the supply and demand of rare earth have attracted great market attention due to the Sino-US competition. The political chaos in Myanmar with the blockage of customs affected the import of Myanmar's rare earth concentrate into China, boosting the product prices. The Group will continue to monitor the development of the situation and adjust the business strategy in response to changes of both the market supply and demand. On the other hand, the Group will also continue to explore opportunities for investable mineral resources in the surrounding area and strive to ensure a stable supply of materials in preparation for a long-term development.

In addition, although the recovery of many industries will help promote the demand for refractory materials, entities regardless of size are still enduring challenges and obstacles due to the pandemic. The Group will adapt to market changes and continue to win the trust of customers with the excellent quality of refractory products, hoping to achieve a long-term development under the co-existence of challenges and opportunities.

Liquidity and Financial Resources

The Group continues to be prudent in its financial arrangements to ensure it has adequate liquidity for future investments and expansions. As at 30 June 2021, the Group had cash and bank deposits of approximately HK$1,757,813,000, which seems slightly increased comparing to HK$1,740,255,000 at the end of 2020. However, if the factor of Renminbi appreciation during the period is removed, it is in fact slightly lower than the figure at the end of last year. In order to cope with the continued tight supply of rare earth resources, the Group continued to invest funds in prepayments. As at 30 June 2021, the net current assets of the Group was approximately HK$2,594,515,000, which was similar to the figure at the end of last year. Total liabilities to total assets ratio remained at about 5%.

During the period under review, the Group did not borrow any money from banks or financial institutions. As at 30 June 2021, the Group continued in pledging certain leasehold lands and buildings with total carrying amount of approximately HK$43,843,000 with a domestic bank, obtaining a financing facility of RMB150,000,000 (equivalent to approximately HK$180,267,000) which has not yet been utilised. Apart from that, the Group had no charge on other assets nor holding of any financial derivative products. The Group was not exposed to any material interest rate risk. As for foreign exchange exposure, most of the Group's assets, liabilities and transactions are denominated in Renminbi and the rest are in US dollars or Hong Kong dollars. During the period under review, Renminbi appreciated slightly which did not cause significant fluctuation of or impact on the Group's financial results.

Staff and Remuneration

The Group continued to streamline its manpower structure in line with business needs. Due to the re-structuring of rare earth production facilities during the period under review, the number of basic workers was reduced comparing that at the end of 2020. As at 30 June 2021, the Group had approximately 360 employees at different levels. The Chinese government's preferential policies for reducing or exempting certain corporate obligations on social security contributions for employees came to a close at the end of last year. During the period under review, the Group's staff costs including directors' emoluments amounted to approximately HK$17,607,000, an increase of more than 20% over the same period last year. The Group continued to provide regular on-the-job training and study opportunities to employees to assist them in maintaining professional competence.
